WEDDING PLANNING

Plan with More Joy

10 thoughtful ways to make the journey—and the day—feel better.

01 Choose Your Top Three

Each of you: name your three non-negotiables, then agree on shared priorities. Food, dancing, photos or the setting? Focus your budget there and give yourselves permission to simplify the rest.

02 Guest List Before Venue Tours

Draft must-invite and optional guest lists before signing a venue contract. Your headcount shapes catering costs and the space you need. Make sure everyone will fit comfortably.

03 Leave Room for the Unexpected

Consider setting aside about 15% of your total budget as a buffer. Account for tax, service fees, delivery, alterations, postage, marriage licenses and tips; confirm what each quote includes.

04 Love Your Plan B

For an outdoor wedding, see the actual weather-backup space before signing. Ask about capacity, extra tent costs and the deadline for making the final weather call.

05 Give Wedding Mail Its Own Home

Create a shared wedding email for inquiries, contracts and RSVPs. Both of you can follow conversations, compare quotes and keep important details out of crowded personal inboxes.

06 Build Breathing Room into the Day

Allow 15–20 minutes of extra time around major transitions. Hair and makeup, bustling a dress and gathering family for photos can take longer than expected.

07 Take Ten Minutes Just for You

Plan a quiet pause together after the ceremony. Ask your coordinator or a trusted helper to bring a drink and appetizers so you can enjoy being newly married.

08 Make Guest Comfort a Priority

Plan for shade or warmth, timely food and smooth bar service. Discuss staffing with your caterer; one bartender per 50–75 guests can be a starting point, depending on the menu and service.

09 Choose a Point Person

Give vendors your coordinator's or trusted helper's number for wedding-day questions. Let that person handle parking, deliveries and late arrivals while you focus on getting ready.

10 Protect Some Wedding-Free Time

Reserve an evening each week—or a weekend each month—with no planning talk. Keep making time for the relationship you're celebrating.

Your wedding is one day. Your life together is the beautiful part.

THE WEDDING DAY EDIT

Less Stress, More Joy

A little preparation. More room to be present.

01 Share the plan

Give your timeline and vendor contacts to a coordinator or trusted helper. Let them handle questions while you enjoy the day.

02 Leave breathing room

Build in extra time for getting ready, travel and portraits. A little buffer helps the day feel less rushed.

03 Eat, sip, pause

Keep water and easy snacks close. Make time for a meal and a few quiet breaths before the celebration begins.

04 Try the little things

Practice your bustle, break in your shoes and pack a small touch-up kit. Familiar details mean fewer surprises.

05 Have a weather plan

Agree on a backup with your venue, then let someone else watch the forecast. Your celebration can still be beautiful.

06 Stay close to each other

Steal a quiet moment together. If something goes off script, return to what matters: you are getting married.

Your wedding does not have to be perfect to be wonderful.

Unity Celebrations

Meaningful ways to begin your life together

A unity ceremony adds a personal, symbolic moment to your wedding—honoring the love you share and the family you're creating.

Lighting a Unity Candle

Together, light one central candle from two smaller candles to symbolize your lives joining as one. Invite parents or loved ones to light the smaller candles for a meaningful nod to your families.

Lasso Ceremony

After your vows, a loved one or officiant places a floral garland, cord or rosary around you in a figure-eight shape—a beautiful symbol of unity and lasting commitment.

Wine Box Ceremony

Tuck a favorite bottle of wine and handwritten letters into a keepsake box during your ceremony. Open it on a future anniversary to revisit the promises and excitement of your wedding day.

Handfasting

With your hands joined, ribbons or cords are gently wrapped around them as you exchange promises. This symbolic ritual gives heartfelt meaning to "tying the knot."

Pouring Sand

Pour different colors of sand into one vessel, creating a keepsake that represents your lives coming together. Children can add their own colors, making this especially meaningful for blended families.

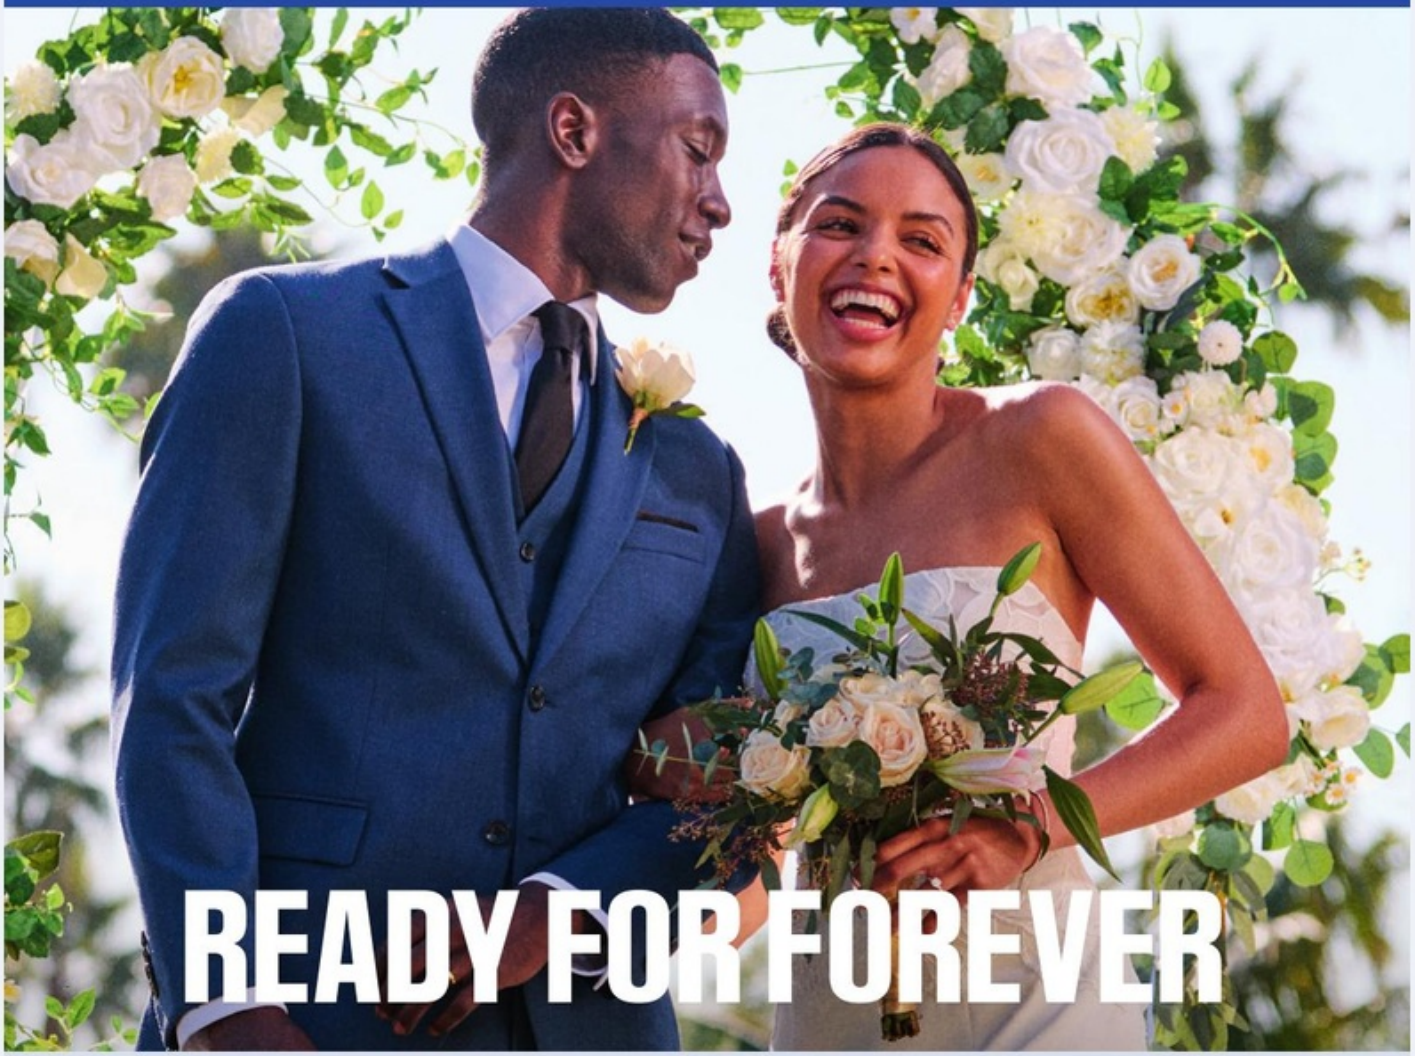

A Cord of Three Strands

In this Christian unity ceremony, three strands represent the couple and God. Braiding them together symbolizes the strength of a marriage rooted in faith, inspired by Ecclesiastes 4:12.

Choose a ritual that feels like you—and make it your own.
